BIGELOW'S CLOSE CALL

How the Colonel Saved His Scalp.

An Episode of the Pioneer Days.

Why a Hassayamper Concluded He Hadn't Lost Any Apaches.

Written for THE REPUBLICAN.

One hot summer day after climbing the old "Government" road, which winds in and out of the gulches, but always up from Copper Basin, my companion, Colonel Bigelow, and myself, reached the cool spring which bubbles from the rocks just before the divide is reached from which the road commences to descend to Prescott, which is eight or nine miles away. The mountains here are covered with tall pine trees, which spring from the ground covered with immense granite boulders.

Resting ourselves at the spring the Colonel pointed to a trail leading up the side of the opposite mountain and said, "A good many years since—I think it was in 1865; and when I felt much younger than now—I came very near being taken in by the Indians up on the trail, where it passes over the divide. I'll tell you how it was."

"I had been down to Prescott for a month or two, having a good time with a lot of the boys, until I had become broke and tired of so much hilarity, and I made up my mind I would strike out for camp, which, at that time, was at the mouth of the Grand wash, which leads down into the Hesperia, four or five miles below Copper Basin."

"I started out from Prescott and was coming up the trail on the other side of that ridge over there, all the time keeping my eyes open for Indians, for in those days a person was always on the lookout for Indians and always had his gun ready for instant use."

"As I came up the hill I noticed a movement of the boughs in the top of a tall piñon pine tree, which stood on the top of the ridge. Not being able from my position to discover what made the commotion in the pine tree top, I carefully made my way up the hill until I had a good view of the tree, and what do you think I saw? Well, an Indian had shinned up the pine tree and, with a long light rib of a saguara, was knocking off the pine cone, which hold the sweet piñon pine nuts."

"I felt very comfortable when I saw the Indian up that tree, for I imagined the result if he had caught me up the tree. I made up my mind that I was my Indian, for the Apaches had made things particularly hot for me on more than one occasion. Without any regard as to whether he would fall on a soft spot or not, I took good aim and then—didn't shoot."

"No? What was the matter," I asked. "I'll tell you why," continued the colonel. "Hearing a slight noise, I looked down the trail on the other side of the hill and there, not more than one hundred yards away, were coming seven or eight Indians in single file and all were armed. They had not seen me. I suddenly concluded I hadn't lost any Indian that day, and I lay flat down in the brush while they passed along the trail in full view of my hiding place and disappeared over the hill."

"As I didn't care to call a band of the red fiends upon me by shooting, I just crawled away from them without letting the Indian up the tree know how near he had been to being my meat nor how near my scalp had been hanging to the belt of one of his tribe."

A GLOBE ROAD.

Another Survey Made Over the Mountains From Florence.

From the Florence Enterprise.

The Supervisors and their party of road hunters returned Thursday afternoon, having succeeded in finding a route toward Globe on the north side of the Gila river.

It will commence near Tom McEllan's house and pass about a mile from Mesquite springs and near John Smith's cattle ranch on to Walnut Grove, and thence over the former survey. They claim the route to be thoroughly practicable with no heavy grades, and that the distance to Globe will be shortened to fifty-five miles, or eighty miles from Casa Grande. They also believe the road will prove a paying investment though it should go no further than Walnut Grove, for it will open up one of the largest and best mining sections in Arizona. The County Surveyor will at once commence placing grade stakes and the contractors will begin work next week and push it through as rapidly as possible with a large force of men and teams. While there is a great diversity of opinion regarding the route of the proposed road, yet it is a relief that a final decision has been reached and that actual work will begin.

The Florence Bridge.

From the Florence Enterprise.

The bridge crossing the Gila river at Florence will be speedily rebuilt with a strength sufficient to resist the force of any future flood that may come. The present bridge still stands intact over the long approach from the Florence side was swept away and the main current now flows several hundred feet south of the main bridge. Over this the new structure will be erected and a system of jetties be constructed to control the eccentric current. Within the next month these repairs will be made and the only safe crossing of the Gila will then exist in Florence.

SUBSTANTIAL IMPROVEMENTS.

The Butte City on the verge of a Building Boom.

From the Tempe News.

Tempe is on the eve of another building boom.

President E. G. Frankenberg, of the Tempe Evaporating and Canning Company, has let the contract to George M. Tiffany for the burning of 200,000 bricks for his company, who will use them in the construction of their canning works. Mons Ellington has ordered 25,000, with which he will add another story to the building now occupied by Lon Forsee's store. John S. Armstrong will use 50,000 in the new building he is about to erect. Neils Peterson has ordered 50,000 to be used in the construction of a residence. Thomas Morrow has given an order for 50,000, with which he will build a fine residence. W. J. Woolf is keeping pace with his neighbors and Mr. Tiffany will furnish him with 50,000 for a new dwelling. James Carroll will erect a new brick house on his place this summer, and the Goodwin boys will put up several houses on their property in Goldman's addition.

THE HAWAIIAN SUCCESSION.

A Cruel Scandal Started About the Reigning Queen.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 24.—Theodore H. Davies, of Honolulu, guardian of Princess Kaiulani, who was recently proclaimed successor to the Hawaiian throne, has prepared a statement in reference to London cablegrams which have appeared in papers of this country to the effect that Queen Liliuokalani was desirous of setting aside Kaiulani's succession in favor of an illegitimate son of her own.

He characterizes the report as pure invention, inasmuch as Kaiulani has been appointed successor by the unanimous decision of the Queen and the House of Nobles, and says the imputation is a cruel and unfounded scandal against the Queen.

Deserting Sealers Drowned.

EUREKA, Cal., March 24.—The light-house keeper at Cape Mendocino reports that last Friday a boat from the sealing schooner Ethel, from San Diego, containing six men, was capsized. Joseph Huff and a sailor named Fred were drowned, the rest saved. The men deserted the vessel during the night while she was sixty miles off shore.

Pool Sellers Arrested.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 24.—The new ordinance prohibiting the sale of pools on horse races, except at places where the actual racing occurs, went into effect this morning. All pool rooms except one were closed in conformity with law, and after the bookmaker of that establishment had been arrested it also closed. The arrest was made for the purpose of making a test case in court.
